

The Mohegan Tribal Government

The Mohegan Tribe is a sovereign, federally recognized Indian nation. Its reservation is located on the Thames River in Uncasville, Connecticut. The Mohegan Nation exercises full civil jurisdiction and concurrent criminal jurisdiction over its lands.

The Tribe is governed by a Tribal Constitution, which empowers a nine-member Tribal Council to serve as both the legislative and executive branch, and a seven-member Council of Elders which is responsible for judicial oversight and cultural integrity. The Tribal Council and Council of Elders serve four year, staggered terms. A Tribal Court system exists to adjudicate constitutional as well as civil issues.

Other Tribal leaders include Chief Many Hearts, Doctor Lynn Malerba, Medicine Woman and Tribal Historian Melissa Tantaquidgeon Zobel, Pipe Carriers Bruce "Two Dogs" Bozsum and Christopher Harris, Firekeeper Jay Ihloff, and Lodgekeeper Charlie Strickland "Two Bears."

The Tribal Government has numerous administrative departments, including Cultural and Community Programs, Education, Library and Archives, Gaming Commission, Health and Human Services, Housing Authority, Public Safety, Utility Authority, Land Preservation and Planning and Environmental Protection.

The Tribe's Journeys

The story of the Mohegan Nation is similar to that of many other Native tribes. Before the arrival of the Europeans, Sachem (Chief) Uncas brought his people to Shantok and the hills of Mohegan. Uncas believed that cooperation with the English arrivals would ensure his people's survival, and therefore, developed a historic interaction between his Tribe and the settlers.

Just two years after forming the Connecticut Colony, the English formally recognized the sovereignty of the Mohegan Tribe with the Treaty of Hartford in 1638, a recognition that has been maintained through the present day.

For over 350 years, treaties and laws have highlighted the Tribe's independent status. At the federal level, the unique rights of Native American tribes were further recognized and laid out in the Constitution of the United States.

In 1978, the Mohegans filed for federal recognition. After an intensive review of over 20,000 pages of paperwork documenting the Tribe's history, the federal government formally recognized the Mohegan Nation on March 7, 1994, marking the end of a long battle for federal recognition as a sovereign nation. This day was a turning point for the Mohegan Tribe and continues to be celebrated annually by the Tribe.

That same year, the Mohegan Tribe decided to pursue casino gaming as a business strategy, with the goal of returning the Tribe to economic self-sufficiency. In 1996, the Tribe opened Mohegan Sun on 185 acres of its reservation in Uncasville, Connecticut. Throughout its 20-year history, it has continued to expand into one of the most successful entertainment and gaming facilities in the world with three casinos, award-winning entertainment venues, 2 hotels, 18-hole championship golf course, spa and more. It is also home court to two professional sports teams owned by the Tribe including the WNBA's Connecticut Sun and the New England Black Wolves lacrosse team.

In a continued effort for economic self-sufficiency, the Tribe, under the entity Mohegan Gaming & Entertainment (MGE), expanded its outreach to off-reservation ventures in January of 2005 with the acquisition of Pocono Downs Raceway in Pennsylvania. After a 1.5-year renovation and expansion, the property – now known as Mohegan Sun Pocono – reopened, marking the first casino in Pennsylvania to offer slot machines.

In August 2012, the Tribe made history once again by becoming the first Native American Tribe to take over management of a commercial property when a management agreement to oversee operations of Resorts Casino Hotel in Atlantic City was signed - further securing financial self-reliance.

To ensure financial stability, the Tribe felt it necessary to diversify its portfolio and in 2014, created Mohegan Holding Company, LLC which focuses on business diversification in non-gaming areas. This includes interests in sustainable energy resources and manufacturing, office digital solutions and franchised restaurants. A company that was founded with two employees now operates over 15 business ventures employing over 500 people and is projected to grow to over 55 franchises nationwide by 2022.

In what could be considered one of the most pivotal moments for the Tribe since federal recognition, the Mohegans broke international barriers in February 2016 when they were awarded a license to operate a $5 billion one-of-its-kind integrated resort destination at one of the world's busiest airports, Incheon International Airport in Seoul, South Korea - putting the Tribe and MGE in a strong position for many years to come.

For the Mohegan Tribe, it is not just about protecting their 2,200-plus tribal citizens. It's about being an integral part of our communities – locally and within Indian Country. Because of our successes, the Tribe has been placed in the unique position to help its fellow native tribes both through community outreach, as well as from a business perspective.

The Mohegan Tribe and MGE entered into a management contract with the Cowlitz Tribe in Washington State to develop and operate a $500 million casino project. Ilani opened in spring 2017 and has already received a number of national awards. In addition, more recently, the Tribe, through MGE, also announced a management agreement with Paragon Casino Resort owned by the Tunica-Biloxi Tribe in Louisiana. These agreements will not only provide additional revenue stream to the Mohegan Tribe, but helps to ensure the financial future for our fellow natives.

As the Tribe continues onward, we are reminded of something the late Chief Ralph Sturges said shortly after being granted federal recognition. "...until now, they were living in the past. They had nothing but their history. Now, they are living in the future. Now, they can make history."
